The figure moved towards them, its face invisible beneath its large hat. Shaking, Jessica and Cody ran to the door and pushed it open – finding themselves in a long, unlit corridor. They slammed the door shut and immediately the handle began to turn. Jessica grabbed the handle, but this was a mistake – it was impossible to stop it turning – so they ran. The door flew open and the figure reappeared. It raised an arm and pointed a long bony forefinger at the running children.

“Give me the map!” it bellowed.

But, as if by magic, the two children suddenly disappeared. The figure groaned: the sound was a mixture of confusion, fury and unhappiness.
